

Russia, the West, and the Future

👤 GodKingandNation

📁 Nationalism, Politics, Russia

🕒 August 3, 2022July 28, 2022

≡ 5

Minutes

When this current epoch ends, and modernity gives way to the End Times, there will be no country or state upon which we can depend. As no one knows the time or hour, we should neither be cheerful or fearful of what may come, and instead anticipate and prepare for our own end, our own departure from this life. This article is not intended to serve as a withdrawal of my support from Russia or Putin. My support for the Russian Federation is not absolute, but up until and only when specific conditions are met will I withdraw my support. Furthermore, the support I extend to Russia is not something exclusively reserved for them. Russia as a nation, a country, and a state have positive prospects for the future, and if possible I would like to see and contribute (if possible) to this future. Had my own country of Canada, or America, or the west as a whole, had similar prospects, I would of course be compelled and, with great pleasure, support and contribute to my own people and the peoples whom I am related to. Alas, as circumstances presently dictate, the west offers her peoples little in terms of actualization, with no positive vision of her people, her past, and her future. As such, as an individual man, the west offers me only benefits so long as my life is conceived of in isolation and individuality. To wed and to have a family is financially disincentivized, and communal living with extended families and neighbours is seen as abnormal and a reflection of one's inability to function socially.

The west does have a vision for the future, but this future is not one I hope to participate in or be geographically associated with, let alone see. Regardless of the problems of non-occidental nations, their moral and spiritual condition can only be harmed by western influence. The west can only offer wealth and material prosperity, and in return it demands the soul of these nations, by either enabling nations to engage in their harmful proclivities, or by mutating them into westernized vassals. The nations of the Middle East, Asia, and Africa are not bastions of righteousness, but left to their own devices they are able to develop in the manner which is most natural to them. With American and western influence, the development of these nations is regulated so that they may better serve the international system. Saudi Arabia and Afghanistan are prime examples of this. In Saudi Arabia, America supports an Arab monarchy whose values are an inverse and mockery of the values America espouses. Even still, these “values” do not compel the beneficiaries of western wealth to improve themselves spiritually or morally, rather American wealth has enabled the Saudi elite to peruse levels of degeneracy and debauchery which are now, only in the modern era, even conceivable to the average westerner. In Afghanistan, America attempted to create a westernized client state, a capitalistic liberal democracy. However, the abstract concepts of liberalism, democracy, and capitalism become further abstracted to freedom and equality, which when expressed in reality become gay rights, feminism, and trans kids. If the American system and government collapsed, the world would be a better place, and this collapse of system and state does not necessitate a collapse of nation and country.

America and the west cannot be readily supported in the current era. You can love your country and your people, but the majority of your people and the borders of your country are controlled by an elite who wish to preserve the state and global system whilst destroying the nation. The American state has never been a moral or benevolent actor. From experimenting on pregnant women by exposing them to radiation (<https://thefreethoughtproject.com/1940s-study-exposed-pregnant-women-with-radiation-to-see-what-would-happen/>), to the Tuskegee syphilis experiment, to MKUltra, it would seem that in the cause of furthering democracy and liberty, liberty and democracy themselves are not to be considered. America has proven itself to be no better than Nazi Germany or the Soviet Union, but unlike the former two, the atrocities of America were suppressed and are only now coming to light. Had I lived during the Cold War, I would probably still have supported America, as American atrocities would have been unknown to me, and the Soviet Union itself was an immoral expansionist Antichrist power. In hindsight, America is also an Antichrist power, but I guess the Antichrist you know is better than the Antichrist you don't. The problem with wedding yourself to a country, especially a country in which you are not a resident, is that you are compelled to defend, justify, and represent not just the current actions of that country, but its future actions as well.

I would prefer the future world order to be that of what Russia is trying to institute. Judging from the west's present course, it has no positive future and we can only hope for collapse or mass transformation, both prospects being unappealing due to the degree of human suffering they will entail. Russia, for all her present problems, has a leader in Putin who espouses a positive vision and appears to be working to institute a better future for his people. Of course, the problem remains that in supporting Putin and Russia I tacitly offer my support to any future actions that may be taken. This is, of course, a risk we all face, and especially for Orthodox Christians we need to be wary of supporting secular leaders, even if they are Christian. This warning is fundamentally the purpose of my Archetypes of the Antichrist series. The Antichrist is coming for Orthodox Christians, not secular liberals, and thus, political leaders like Putin can be a liability. I have considered writing an Archetypes article on Putin, as well as the Marbled King, and Elon Musk. Alas, as Putin can be seen as a less severe Adolf Hitler (<https://godkingandnation.wordpress.com/2022/02/11/archetypes-of-the-antichrist-adolf-hitler/>), most of what I said about Hitler applies to Putin. Likewise, the legend/prophesy of the Marbled King's return is essentially the Orthodox counterpart to the Catholic Great Monarch (<https://godkingandnation.wordpress.com/2021/05/14/archetypes-of-the-antichrist-the-great-catholic-monarch/>), as such there is little purpose in a repeat. The article on Elon Musk may still happen, but he is essentially another Avro Manhattan (<https://godkingandnation.wordpress.com/2021/01/14/avro-manhattan-archetype-of-the-anti-christ/>), with his elite connections and lifestyle coupled with his appealing to conservative values, all while working towards an anti-Christian transhuman or post-human future.

A person seemingly wants, if not needs, a country to support. I own a series of flags, and I think that it is telling that only one of them represents a country which currently exists. A country can only really be idealized after it ceases to exist, as with the separation of time we are able to contextualize and see that country for the totality of what it was. This is not nostalgia, or the denial of negative aspects of history. When I judge America and the west, I judge them based upon the current order, which at best includes some 70-100 years of history. This is not fair considering the total history of western civilization, but when we judge this modern western epoch to the west of past epochs, or to other civilization past and present, the modern west is demonstrably lesser. I do not know if the Russian future will be better than the current present. That is the risk we take. If the future remains just an extension of the present, then we in the west have nothing to look forward to, but at least the Russian present gives one grounds for hope, and it is that present which I would wager to be superior to our own.

If you are able to donate I would welcome your support on Patreon or via the crypto wallets below:
<https://www.patreon.com/godkingandnation> (<https://www.patreon.com/godkingandnation>).

Bitcoin: bc1q3q8qaff3d2zllj3yx7jtszrs349xv4av2r8mg3

Ethererum: 0x072E4EE9268AfAA436A8f4BBdAF775b28007eCD4

Tagged:

Nationalism,

Politics,

Russia

Published by GodKingandNation

View all posts by GodKingandNation

